Escaped from Marlinton jail the night of November 12, 1901. Wanted for murder. Small rather heavy set man, about 5 ft. 7 in. high, weighs perhaps 130 lbs., round face, black hair. Will probably seek refuge in coal mining districts.

one obstinacy about paying a fine in a misdemeanor case. Gray sneaked through the door and moved off the padlock with his pocket knife. His cell-mate was found bound and gagged. A small man and the man who was bound and gagged a much bigger one, the county always thought there was some duplicity about this escape.

When the jail at Marlinton was built, the contractor from way down south was full of guile. He had the contract for the new court-house and jail, and the county court had driven a hard bargain with him. He then proceeded to do some things he ought not to have done, and least undone others he ought to have done. The county was not altogether satisfied with the job but they came out so much better than other counties near by that they were something of a consolation. He was speculating with this contractor. He assured everyone in reach that he had patented a process for hardening steel so that no tool could make the slightest impression on it. The rivet holes had to be bored or punched before the bar was hardened, otherwise the rivets would not hold. He would get rivet holes. Then he had another process which tempered steel so that it could not be broken. It would bend but it was so tough that it never could be broken. He would take prominent citizens to the jail and show them that a cold chisel had no effect on his bars.

With such a web and wool he was such a steel cage that the man who was incarcerated therein had as well lay down and die, as he lay any hope of escape was concerned. He would allow any person any tools he chose and if he escaped in twenty-four hours he would give him $500. A blacksmith in the Lewis heard about it and came up to try it but the contractor had escaped.

In those days Marlinton citizens would point with pride to one Barlow and claim that the day of trouble with prisoners was over. Arriving and Cumberland, a few who were afterwards convicted of robbery, were among the first to feel the helplessness of being confined in this jail. They would not spring and watching their chains, looked their fellow up and came away.

They made good their escape about dark but three inches of rain falling that night, they were so wet that they were unable to make a fire and when they were in a ditch they lay down and died. The jail was built to last to death. The jail was built to last to death. The jail was built to last to death.

Then there was a man named Roberts who married a young girl and who in a drunken frenzy had beaten her half to death. He got away from Marlinton the next morning and was captured the next day on Williams River.

the citizenship found nothing more to their taste or had more rapturous seasons of joyous delight than when witnessing the battles to a finish of wild beasts, or more enjoyable still, seeing some human being torn to pieces by Numidian lions.

It is such a strange, morbid taste, the characteristic cultivating evidence of human civilization as represented by Rome and Greece, names that are synonymous with the highest culture ever attained by human genius, and for ages studies as models of all that is meant by human culture and refinement in its most attractive types.

That was a wonderful expression of one of the most wonderful men of all time. "So we go and rot and rot." It is and we go and rot and rot. It is and we go and rot and rot.

There is too much reason for thinking that this ripening and ripening and rotting and rotting is all that confuses of slow progress, of education on conventional lines, and worship of the highest efforts of the human intellect will have to show in modern times, or in other words, all of this so-called modern civilization may result only in the triumphant development of what is lowest and poorest in human nature.

Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, now poses before the country as a person having a delicate sense of propriety and fearlessly honest. He was honored by a request to pronounce an eulogy upon our lamented President at a public demonstration near his home. He declined the invitation in this handsome manner: "I think the eulogy on the President should be delivered by a person who was in full accord with him upon the principal political measures of his administration. I never questioned his absolute sincerity, his devotion to the public welfare, his love of liberty and his desire to do his duty as God gave him to see it. I was in full accord with him on the great fiscal measures with which he was identified. But as you know I differ with him and his administration—and my opinion on that subject has been strengthened, not weakened, in the lapse of time—in regard to his policy in dealing with the Philippine Islands."

A CORNER IN CORN.

It almost makes one's mouth water to hear of what a good President Mexico, our sister Republic, has in Senator Diaz.

It was once a crime in good old England to speculate in food supplies, those who did so in wheat or any other staple food were speedily and severely punished.

President Diaz has recently taught such speculators what he thinks of corners in bread stuffs. Corn and beans are the main food staples of Mexico, and when the word of either is forced up much suffering results among the people.

Speculators recently planned a corner in corn and when it caused a frightful rise in bread the President determined to interfere.

In the first place he judged the railroad to make a sudden and sweeping reduction of the corn freight. Then through the government officials and agents he bought up vast quantities of corn in every part of Mexico and put it on the market at hardly one-third of the price the corn conspirators were charging. Corn then fell to the price it was selling at before it was cornered.

The speculators in food supplies found themselves with many bushels on hand for which they had paid much more than what became the ruling market price. Many of them were financially ruined, and all of them lost heavily.

WHERE WILL MODERN LAND?

It is the impression made on the mind of most any observant reader of the public journals that one of the recent conversations was talked about by everybody was the fact of going over Niagara Falls in a barrel and coming out alive, performed by a widow lady from Texas, aged about fifty years.

This is a sign of something, the matter with the public taste, and the thoughtful reader may justly require what does the sign signify?

In looking at our various sights, he comes to the conclusion that he is in the lower East. He sees the same kind of the spectacle, and that is a sign of something, and that is a sign of something, and that is a sign of something.

Then there was a man named Roberts who married a young girl and who in a drunken frenzy had beaten her half to death. He got away from Marlinton the next morning and was captured the next day on Williams River.

FATAL ACCIDENT.
Charles Shewalter Crushed by the Cars at Clover Creek.

Last Tuesday Charles Shewalter, a well known citizen of this county, attempted to board the train at Clover Creek and was crushed by the cars.

The deceased was about thirty years of age and at the time of his death was engaged in the lumber business. He was married last summer to a daughter of Ames Woodfill.

Big Land Sale.
Col J. A. Angus has just sold about 100 acres of land adjoining the Spence County, for $60,000. The payments are strung out to the year 1911 and bear 6 per cent interest. The deed was filed for record in the county clerk's office on the 14th inst. 1909.

This tract of land was once occupied by Talsi Strickland and the Cliff House now occupied by Wm. A. Hoover.

This is the largest sale ever made in Bath County. The land and buildings thereon are assessed for taxation at $11,000.00 and prior to this year at $1,100.00—Bath Enterprise.

Big Fire at Warm Springs.
The McClintic mill and store on this side of Germantown were burned last week. The loss is estimated at $20,000 with insurance amounting to $20,000. Two thousand bushels of wheat were destroyed.

This mill was a veritable haven of rest for Pocahontas schoolers frequenting goods from the depot. The mill was turned by the rapid stream flowing from the Warm Springs just above. Many Pocahontas men, and among them a writer, can remember nights of the most refreshing sleep on the grain stacks of the old mill, while sound of falling water soothed the tired senses.

The men of the road were always welcome at the mill. The yard was often full of wagons with loads of freight. The drivers cooked their suppers at the mill store, ate and stretched their weary limbs on the softest place they could find.

A few years since M. H. McClintic to whom the mill belonged built a large general store adjoining the mill and both were burned. The wheat was the property of the miller and represented his entire stock. The loss of the buildings and the wheat was a heavy blow to the miller.

A Good Meeting.
The revival meeting held at Jackson at the new church, which had been in session several weeks and which was fully conducted by Rev. C. M. Falls, was not only a glorious success for the present, but its effect, we believe, will live as long as the rivers of time continue to flow.

The power of God manifested in convincing and converting power, also in sanctifying grace. The gospel was proclaimed with such fervor and power that the church was not only increased in number but feeling its effect.

Rev. Falls is one of our best preachers and his address is at the church and his home at the front of the church.

There were about twenty conversions and a number of new members. The church is a great benefit and we do not believe any regret what they paid in securing the new church.

THE WILD BOAR.
Tals of a Wild Boar of before the War.

Fifty or sixty years ago stock-raising in Pocahontas County was carried on under different conditions than now. Instead of blue-grass pastures where cattle fatten in summer they ranged the woods like deer; and instead of hay and grain in the winter, they browsed on the twigs of the sugar tree.

Cattle, sheep and hogs were of a wilder strain. Cattle have become polled, sleek and fat; the sheep's wool curls closer to their backs; but none have improved like the hogs. Their mounts have become shaggy, their bodies rounder, and their legs shorter.

The hogs roamed the woods and often strayed so far in the mountains they were never found and speedily slipped back into their original state of wildness. The climate was too severe, however, and they never thrived so they do farther south where the woods are full of wild hogs. Here some exceptionally strong wild hogs would cause them to starve or send them into the farms where they would be killed and eaten.

Many of our older citizens remember when corvids and hogs were patrolled at night to guard against the ravages of wild hogs which could go through or over fences and which if they once got a taste of a farmer's corn field would return to it night after night.

In the fifties a most remarkable boar had his range in Buckley Mountain east of town. His size and ferocity made him a marked animal for years. He was often seen by men selling their cattle, and the wild hogs of Buckley Mountain were the terror of all the children in this part of Pocahontas County.

He came out of the woods into the upper part of the bottom on which the town of Marlin is now built and charged two men working in the field called the "Lapen Patch."

They got into trees just in time, and the boar turned and ran down the bottom clear to the lower end where he turned into the woods again.

The boar was a tremendous long-legged creature and either leaped or broke down fourteen rail fences in his mad charge down the bottom. He was seen by a man living on Marlina Bottom and the whole place was in an uproar, everyone shouting and running to get out of the way—that the big boar was coming.

No one crossed his path until the extremities of the bottom were reached, when the beast charged Joshua Kee, who being unable to get out of the way was knocked down and trampled upon. Fortunately he escaped being cut with the tusks of the boar, but he was a marked man a "victim" of him.

A year or two after this the boar came into the bottom where some hunters were hunting foxes. His visit was repeated every night. An exceedingly strong party was built on where the Methodist church now stands and a sliding door arranged. A man laid out at night until the boar entered to eat the corn and then pulling the cord used a prisoner of the vicious brute.

A rope was thrown over the sliding door, and being secured, his tusks were sawn off. They had grown for above his snout and turned up.

He did not survive in confinement long and it is related that when the carcass was drawn out the next morning it was found to remain; not a lizard, crow, or other animal was seen, and the body lay undisturbed until it dried up in the sun the next summer.

TOP OF ALLEGHANY.
It rained, it snowed, the pen alone, the wind blew and it got cold all the same day.

Most of the people in the neighborhood have been out of the house for some time. M. J. Coker is threatening again in this vicinity.

Rev. W. L. Wilmoth preached an interesting sermon at Top Allegany school house last Sunday.

William Barkley went to Durbin last Saturday for a load of furniture.

The hunters from Barbours have been here, but they did not take the deer with them. I suppose they will come back for it at some future date.

Sam Spencer would be glad if the men who borrowed his hat at the reception at Mr. Erwin's house would return it to him.

James Phillips, the champion pheasant hunter, killed five pheasants in a day and only four were taken.

Mr. Moore, of Barbours, is visiting in this county.

Barbours County, Va., again has a large number of deer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Erwin and family are visiting in this county.

BASIN ROCKS.
A Wonderful Formation in Webster County.

The Basin Democrat contains an account of a natural curiosity in Webster County on "Mason's Branch of Laurel Creek" called the "Basin Rocks." A rock wall forty feet high forms an almost complete circle with a radius of 500 feet. The wall cannot be scaled by man nor beast but in the walls are many fissures, once the dens of panthers, bears and other flesh eating animals.

There is a single opening to the basin and at the mouth of this one of the most famous deer licks of Webster County known as the "Palmer Lick" for obvious reasons.

On account of panthers in the old time, hunters would not watch this lick after dark.

After the mountain lions had been slain to a considerable extent a hunter by the name of Blankenship watched the lick one night and killed two deer. He went to sleep with his head on one and his feet on the other. Next morning he awoke and found the panthers had removed both deer without waking him, and bloodily trails were everywhere.

Where his game had been carried. This is a wonderful tale and if we had not seen it in print we could not believe it.

Basin Rocks is the place where the mountain lions made their last stand in Webster County. They were finally destroyed from there and driven over into Pocahontas County, where they fit from time to time at night hideous howling for fear.

SHIPMENT OF GAME SEIZED.
By Deputy Marshal Cunningham on the Greenbrier River.

Monday night last, while Deputy United States Marshal Cunningham was coming down the Greenbrier branch of the C. & O. enroute to this city with a number of prisoners, witnesses and jurymen for the Federal Court, he discovered in the express car of the train three barrels of game that was being shipped to dealers in New York and Baltimore.

The officer seized the entire shipment and is holding it under the Federal statute which forbids the sale of game, which gives the officer the power to arrest parties shipping from the state in which it is killed, game protected by law.

The case is being investigated and the proper disposition will be made of the shipment seized by the officer.

All of the game was killed in Pocahontas county, and it is said tremendous prices are being paid for the "wild game" in that section by the New York and Baltimore dealers in game. The price paid for quail is 20 cents a piece, pheasants 15 cents each and venison is 30 cents a pound. It will be seen that these prices paid for the game delivered at the shipping points in the territory in which it is killed will result in practically exterminating all of the game in the territory in which it is killed.

The shipment seized by Officer Cunningham consisted of one barrel of quail, one barrel of venison, one barrel of rabbit, and one barrel of quail and venison. There was also a large box filled with pheasants. The game is being held at Roncavette awaiting the orders from the government officers—Charleston Gazette.

BUCKEYE.
Big storms and big meetings on the day of the day.

Rev. Crabtree closed his meeting with about a dozen conversions.

Dr. McNeil of Mill Point is attending to some of the sick of this part.

Miss Naomi Kinslow who has been on the sick list is rapidly improving.

Porter Kellison able to be out again after a brief illness.

George Lightner has a contract for hauling lumber from John N. Addison's for W. McClinton. Any one wishing to work hard should call on or address Mr. Lightner at Buckeye.

Late Young has rented his blacksmith shop and will stay by the first this winter.

Henry Orsholt who was taken to Lewisburg by Deputy Marshal Cunningham charged with selling liquor proved himself to be an innocent man and is at work again.

W. McClinton has finished sawing the timber he bought of Joseph Penell.

George Blackman and Johnnie McGraw two well known woodmen are here for a few days.

George Jackson had a runaway last week losing his buggy and horse. He says he does not care for the buggy so much as his new hat.

T. C. Ware was here on business recently.

A. A. Rucker made a flying trip to Greenbrier and Monroe last week for a Pennsylvania lumber company.

Captain Edgar of Academy has been in this part recently buying some cattle.

Anthony Lightner the village blacksmith has charge of a crew of men loading lumber for the Piedmont Lumber Company, at Buckeye, with Andy Rose and Jim Shaffer as helpers.

A GHOST STORY.
Interesting Reminiscence of a Ghostly Affair.

In his long and active life, Hon. Wm. Curry of Huntersville never had but one ghost adventure. This was about sixty years ago in the vicinity of what is now Arbuckle, which had the reputation of being haunted in local traditions at that period. Passing near the old church one very dark night he heard a great commotion going on in the building as if a crowd of revellers were seeing who could make the most racket.

His horse became very much frightened and with difficulty was restrained from running away. The mounting and fastening the animal and securely sound fastening the horse and looking through the window saw what looked like hundreds of pale lights sitting round and round.

The odor of sheep betrayed what was really going on in the second house at that late and lonely hour. Upon opening the door the flock rushed out pell mell and the eyes, ears and noses all explained what the scene really was. Here were all the materials for a thrilling ghost adventure if it were not for the fact that his own way and been spontaneously inclined himself.

W. T. P.

NORR.
The editor of the ghost department thinks there is more in that story than appears above. His idea is that it was a gang of spirits. Now it is the death of a spirit to meet anyone who does not believe in ghosts. There is nothing in the science of ghosts better established than this and it is the reason why some people see ghosts and others do not. A ghost is a very sensitive creature and when it meets a person who does not believe in it, it goes away back and sits down. When the above named ghosts saw a person who did not believe in ghosts peering through a window—pronto change—they became a flock of sheep. This not unusual in the spirit world—Brynore.

Large Contract Awarded a Lynchburger to the Soldiers' Home Hospital - A $40,000 contract for the purchase of 100 tons of freight train cars has been awarded to the Lynchburg Car Company, Lynchburg, Va. by the United States Army. The cars are to be used for the transportation of patients and supplies to the Soldiers' Home Hospital, Washington, D. C. The cars are to be delivered by the end of the month.

 lishing, and in 10 minutes the fire and every part of the structure, and the square alongside the Chesapeake and Potomac freight station. Probably so called because of the square, although the establishment and most of all the work here. Shifting engines put them in the city, where several lines of the were turned on the burning cars, and the cars were loaded with merchandise. The establishment, a part of which was destroyed by fire, was the property of the Chesapeake and Potomac Railway Company, was totally destroyed. The approximate loss is as follows: Chesapeake and Potomac Railway, $20,000; Miller Supply Company, $5,000.

The fire broke out at Odd Fellows street, at the annual session of the fair, choosing Elkins as the next meeting place. The fire was caused by the O. M. Beach of Grafton, Grand Master; G. A. Vincent, of Fairmont, Grand Secretary; and W. R. Elkins, of Hartford, Grand county Grand Master; A. E. Billingsley, of Fairmont, Grand Treasurer; and W. R. Elkins, of East and Grand, Grand Secretary.

The fire was caused by the O. M. Beach, who was convicted at the last term of the Circuit Court of the county of Frederick.

The sheriff of the county took him to the jail to get Pierson to go with him to Moundville with him, but arriving at the jail he found the prisoner lying in a pool of blood. He was found bleeding to death, and physicians say he cannot live. Pierson is a young man and a member of one of the most prominent families of the county.

TRAINING TO LAWYERS
Greenbrier Independent ed a treatise letter last from Western Greenbrier nothing in particular, by E. ead. In the letter he says e section has "furnished children, more doctors, and, God, fewer lawyers than that section of like size on given earth."

AN INTERESTING FACT.

Martin Luther, the great Re- former (1517) among the many good things he did, wrote a fa- mous treatise on Paul's Epistle to the Romans. That portion of this Bible, Luther speaks of as "a brilliant light, almost sufficient to illuminate the whole Bible."

Luther's treatise, little in volume as it is, unfolds the whole plan of salvation with singular plainness and fidelity. It was written at a time when the Scripture doctrine of justification by faith alone found few advocates and was seldom preached. Luther's Preface to the Romans has been translated into nearly all the languages of Europe, and God has at his disposal it in blessing it to the conversion of thousands. Many such instances are on record from which we select but one, both on account of the un- doubted veracity of the narration, and the well known character of the subject. Need we say that this individual is the Rev. John Wesley, the founder of the Method- ical connection?

It is well known that this distinguished servant of the Master preached a Saviour to others, for ten years, who knew not him- self. He describes himself as being ignorant of the righteousness of Christ, and seeking to estab- lish his own righteousness by the deeds of the law. Wesley became intimately acquainted with Peter Boelter; and by him "in the hands of the great God," says Mr. Wesley, "I was clearly convinced of unbelief, of the want of that faith whereby alone we are saved." But his path was not plain until Wednesday, May 24, 1738—a memorable day in his history. The following ac- count of this change is given in his own words:

"In the evening I went very unwillingly to a society in Aldersgate street, where one was reading Luther's Preface to the Epistle to the Romans. About a quarter before nine, while he was describing the change which God works in the heart through faith in Christ, I felt my heart strangely warmed. I felt I did trust in Christ alone for salvation and an assurance was given me that he had taken away my sins, even mine, and saved me from the law of sin and death!"

Reader, in this treatise of the sainted Luther and this experience of the noble Wesley, or better yet in the fountain head itself, in the Epistle to the Romans you can discover the foundation of your hope for heaven. Are you will be saved by faith alone? Have you always believed in Je- sus as your Saviour? Have you the fruits of the spirit which are meekness, joy and love? So be- lieving, happy are you if you continue thus to the end. Have faith in God, and believing you shall rejoice with unpeakable joy.

A VISIT TO POCAHONTAS COUNTY IN 1860

[We feel that we have a special treat for our readers in a commu- nication prepared by the Hon. Wm. Ruffner, L. L. D., of Lex- ington, Va. Dr. Ruffner was for many years State Superintendent of schools in Virginia and has a national reputa- tion as an educator. He ranks high as a natural scientist. He has done more in a quiet, unself- ish way in bringing the marvel- lous resources of our State into public notice than he has received just recognition for as yet. We can assure him that all our read- ers will be more than pleased to see what Dr. Ruffner may have to write about his "subsequent visit to Pocahontas," whenever it may suit his convenience to do so.]

In the summer and autumn of 1860 I was engaged as an am- nator, in running a geological sec- tion across the country, hoping that in the course of years I might extend it from the Atlantic Ocean to the Ohio River. In the year mentioned I had work- ed on the line from Goshen by way of Marlboro, Warm Springs, Hantersville, as far as Eday, where I stopped for the season. On reaching a point of special in- terest such as Hantersville I would spend two or three days examining the circumjacent coun- try on horse back and when at the house where I lodged I was gen- erally in my room making maps and cross sections and writing up my field notes. Occasionally also I would have letters to write. This left me little or no time for mak- ing acquaintances, and I rather avoided talking about my geolog- ical work. In those days and even ten years later a field geologist was often ridiculed.

One September in 1860 I drove to the tavern kept by John Hol- den in Hantersville. I was travel- ing in a small vehicle and my chief baggage was a saddle and bridle tied on behind. I stayed two nights, one whole day and parts of two others. I spent the days chiefly on horseback in the valley of Knapp's Creek and on Brown's Mountain, where I found so much to interest me that on re- turning to the tavern I hastened to my room and was so pre- occupied that I scarcely saw or spoke to any body in the village except quiet John Holden and his admi- rable wife, both of whom afterward came to Rockbridge and settled for life on my little place almost touching my farm.

But the Holdens and I knew nothing of each other on the occa- sion. I am writing about this. They did not know where I came from, or what was my name; still less, if possible, of my business. I wrote until a somewhat late hour each night, and it so happened that I carried letters to the postoffice box the last thing before going to bed, and it also happened that one morning I rode out of town with John Holden, who was the mail carrier, and to whom I might have committed important packages.

On the last morning I drove on along the main road examining some interesting outcrops, and, crossing Greenbrier River at Mar- tine Bottom, by sunset reached the house of Mr. Robert Moore, at Eday. There I had a pleasant sojourn of about three days. I was approaching the coal measure. A new limestone appeared. Large blocks of the great con- glomeration lay at the foot of the mountain, crammed with beau- tiful white pebbles. One big block did not seem to be a coal mass, which I did not see. Moreover the fact I stayed with were considered Methodist people, who made me comfortable. I wish I could say to the reader the impression I obtain of the wonderful book- bound nature they did not believe in. I should say they were too lazier in diameter, half an inch thick, light, sweet and well baked, and along with these sweet butter and lovely maple custard! This would have been a feast, if there had been nothing else.

SECTION MAN KILLED.

Wm. Walker, of Warwick, Ky., Killed in Collision.

Last Saturday night No. 80 was coming down towards Cape running light. While rounding a curve it collided with a hand car on which was section foreman Adams and crew. William Walker, a young married man from Kentucky, was thrown against the engine and, mortally hurt, received injuries about the head and had both legs broken. He was removed to Cape and placed on board the passenger train to be taken to the hospital but died while on the train before reaching Cape.

Interesting Dover Suit.

A suit has been commenced in Beth county, Va., by Mrs. M. L. Warwick for dower interest in that portion of the Warwick place on Jackson River conveyed by the late John A. Warwick to Jas. W. Warwick, Jr.

A similar suit has been instituted in this county against Lattimer Lake and Miss Emma N. Warwick concerning property in this county held by the late John A. Warwick.

C. E. Jones and J. T. McCallister are the plaintiff's attorneys. It is thought that these suits will lead to interesting litigation.

We understand that a divorce was granted to the late John A. Warwick in a western state on an order of publication, and that the most prominent question to be settled is whether such a divorce takes the effect of divorce.

Bone in Ox's Heart.

Last week John Roark was butchering a beef for G. M. Kee. He attempted to split the heart with his knife but was prevented by some foreign animal.

Upon examination a bone was found in the center of the heart. It was shaped like a scimitar, and was about two inches long by half an inch broad.

The occurrence of a hard bone in the heart of a healthy animal is supposed to be very singular, but one of our doctors says that this growth, while not exactly a bone, is not an uncommon occurrence in the heart of a beef, and is as tough as iron.

Incorporated.

The Greenbrier & Gauley River Railway Company, of Marlinton, was chartered last week by the Secretary of State, and will operate a railway from the mouth of Gauley River to the mouth of Gauley River, in Fayette county.

The incorporators are: W. S. Warr, H. Warr, George K. Warr, Samuel A. Kendall and N. C. McNeil.

Beast Hunt.

YEW PINE MOUNTAIN.

News is scarce here but I will report what I have.

I killed a buck Tuesday, fat as mud and weighed 300 pounds. Sold for $20 at camp the same day. Also killed a large doe and shot the leg off a fawn.

I camp 2 miles from mouth of Dayway. If you don't know where that is ask Lock McClintock. I eat long loaf, ferrisoids, and venison, drink one gallon of coffee per day, keep order in camp and out and have visitors—all men. I live a high life. Have eight bare pen sets.

Have just heard of Kellison's escape. The Cherry River will run day and night and keep me posted on time. I will give you another sketch later.

Any of the aforesaid tracts or lots may be redeemed by the payment to the undersigned sheriff before sale of the amount due thereon. Given under my hand this 26th day of November, 1901. E. N. MOORE, S. P. C.

TOP OF ALLEGHANY.

We have been having quite a storm for several days; the snow fell to the depth of about seven inches last week.

George Wilmoth killed a fine deer last Saturday. Claude and Lee Barker were with him.

William Rackman, of Crabottom, Va., is looking after his interests in this part.

The singing at Spooner school house last Sunday was very good, although the weather was so bad that there was not a very large crowd present.

Miss Orr Phillips is visiting relatives on Buffalo Mountain.

Luther and Joe Phillips made a flying trip to the county seat recently; the next thing will be something else.

Luther Phillips fell about twenty feet from a scaffold on a building, but as good luck would have it was not seriously hurt.

Miss Grace Woodell, who has been staying at Travelers Rest for some time, is at home.

MONTEVER.

C. C. Hanel, of McDowell, is again with V. B. Bishop. Mr. Hanel is a very popular clerk and his friends are glad to have him among us.

25 Per Cent REDUCTION SALE.

The 25 per cent. reduction sale will commence Thursday, November 28, Thanksgiving Day. I will sell my entire stock of goods with the exception of Groceries, Furniture and Stoves at a reduction of 25 per cent. for cash only.

I WILL TAKE POULTRY DECEMBER 31ST.

The reason for this sale is I have bought a large stock of goods and have paid for the Holt property with business money and now compelled to raise money to meet my obligations instead of going to borrow and pay interest on same I would rather sacrifice at profit for one week and raise the cash. 25 per cent. means that you save 25c saved on each dollar worth of goods, fresh this season.

I challenge any body to show a nicer line of clothing. Shoes made by John Kelly. They are the best line I have gotten yet in mackey sewed and a well. (In another ad I explain difference of a mackey sewed shoe to a welt.) They are made of the finest kid, with heavy soles, mostly EE width. Not enough for a Thanksgiving present.

If you want him make your best girl a present she will appreciate her one of my fur collarettes or hose. I have a nice line to select from. A nice pair of horse blankets, serviceable and durable for $1.75.
